

Cargo Insurance & Carriers Liability

written by Lauri Moon | November 22, 2022

There is always a risk of loss when shipping cargo. This risk can vary based on several factors such as mode of transport, commodity, origin/destination, packaging, and other considerations. It is important to understand what options exist to protect a shipper/consignee in the event of a loss. Many times, there is confusion as to the difference between carrier's liability and cargo insurance and what protection each provides. Not understanding the differences can cause disputes and uncovered financial loss.

All Domestic and International Operations Personnel Should Attend

A free webinar sponsored by SAPDC.

Register