

In the Wake of Catastrophe: Responding to a Workplace Accident

written by Lauri Moon | May 4, 2022

When a workplace catastrophe strikes, it is important to act fast, follow applicable emergency plans and policies, and take control of the accident scene. Any workplace can experience an accident, whether it is a major injury, fatality, fire, or chemical release. While incident prevention should be paramount, a company needs to be equally prepared to respond to an accident.

In this webinar, we will explore:

- Immediate first steps you should take in the aftermath of a workplace catastrophe
- OSHA reporting requirements
- What to expect when OSHA becomes involved
- Preparing your employees for an inspection
- Instilling order in the workplace
- Communicating to your employees that their safety is important and necessary

Register

We want to stay in touch, but only in ways that you find helpful. By requesting this service, Endeavor Business Media will send you industry leading news, events, magazines, e-newsletters, research and other communication about events and promotions from our brands, affiliates and partners related to your interests consistent with Endeavor's Privacy Policy You can unsubscribe from our communications at any time by emailing emailsolutions@endeavorb2b.com.

Speakers

Travis Vance, Partner, Fisher & Phillips, LLP

Sponsored by

