written by admin | March 15, 2016

Inventors can find the journey of innovation mentally straining and challenging . This Inventor's Club Workshop aims to provide support and assistance to people or small businesses turning their ideas into commercially viable products, especially to those encounter road blocks and are in need of help and direction on their project. So please bring your questions and problems and we will be glad to lend a hand. More importantly, bring your skills and thinking caps to share and brainstorm.

This month we will join David Stone, as he shares his ideas on how to use Amazon.com to promote his invention, "The Guppy" for sail boats.

The Inventor's Club meeting is designed to educate, foster collaboration and networking and give attendees the tools, resources and knowledge they need to move their inventions forward.

Meetings take place on the 4th Wednesday of most months and are open to the public.
