

The State of EHS Technology and How Organizations are Leveraging Technology to Improve and Sustain a Safety Culture

written by Lauri Moon | March 11, 2019

EHS departments aren't usually considered hotbeds of technology adoption, but recent research indicates that they have made substantial investments to date and are poised to increase implementation in the future.

This webinar will reveal the technologies EHS professionals have adopted and plan to adopt in the future, establishing a benchmark against which companies can compare their progress. It also will address EHS technology decision-making and budgeting; barriers to technology investment; and leveraging technology to improve and sustain a safety culture. With this information, you'll gain the information you need to build your EHS technology deployment strategy.
