

IMC Announces New Board Member, Officers

written by Lauri Moon | October 3, 2017

The Innovative Manufacturers' Center (IMC), a public-private partnership dedicated to increasing Central Pennsylvania manufacturers' innovation, productivity and profitable growth, has named Shannon Munro, Vice President for Workforce Development at Pennsylvania College of Technology to its board of directors. Munro joined the Innovative Manufacturers Center's Board of Directors in July and will serve a three-year term. Munro has been with the college since 2012 where she oversees workforce training and consulting offerings and operations.

At its annual meeting in September, IMC's Board of Directors elected officers for its 2017-18 fiscal year. Keith Atherholt will service as Chairman; Dr. Vince Matteo as Vice Chairman; and Terri Fry as Secretary/Treasurer. Mr. Atherholt is President of Lewis Lumber Products located in Picture Rocks, Dr. Matteo is President/CEO of the Williamsport/Lycoming Chamber of Commerce and Ms. Fry is Vice President of Strategic Planning & Fabrication with Jersey Shore Steel Company headquartered in Jersey Shore.

Founded in 1988, the Innovative Manufacturers' Center works with Central PA manufacturers to help them innovate, grow and prosper. Supported through the U.S. Department of Commerce, National Institute of Standards and Technology's Hollings Manufacturing Extension Partnership (MEP) program and the Pennsylvania Department of Community and Economic Development's Manufacturing PA program, IMC serves manufacturers in Lycoming, Montour, Northumberland, Union, Snyder, Clinton, Centre, Mifflin, Juniata, Huntington, Blair, and Bedford Counties.
