Meeting the HR Challenge

written by Lauri Moon | October 25, 2024

Small and mid-sized manufacturing firms face a special challenge in recruiting, selecting, onboarding, upskilling or reskilling, and retaining their workers.

Most business leaders and HR professionals are keenly aware of The Great Resignation, Quiet Quitting, and similar trends with the workforce that complicate the job of employers finding, attracting, engaging, and keeping workers with the right attitude and with the right ability.

This 55-minute webinar will help identify and invigorate a new or refreshed awareness of several important elements of meeting today's HR challenges, especially those directly connected with workforce trends.

Internationally recognized HR thought leader, William J. Rothwell, will deliver this engaging session and touch briefly on each of the following topics:

- The current employment landscape and how to approach the HR Challenge without an HR staff.
- Insights and current approaches important for recruiting and selecting workers.
- Understanding current onboarding challenges and considerations for training and development.
- Discovering several trends in worker engagement.
- Reducing turnover and improving retention rates.

Meeting the HR Challenge isn't a one-time quick fix. It is developing tactical and cultural approaches that will help the organization start things off right and gain more engagement and commitment over time.

Webinar: Future-proof Your Workforce

written by Lauri Moon | October 25, 2024

The National Association of Manufacturers estimates that manufacturers have 365,000 unfilled jobs now and will need to fill 3.5 million jobs in the next 7 years. In addition to traditional assembly line jobs, the manufacturing industry is moving rapidly toward jobs with irreplaceable human skills, such as creativity, ingenuity, and critical thinking.

To stay competitive, manufacturers need to quickly accommodate the new expectations of this shifting workplace environment. New job opportunities bring new ways of working. Your current and future employees require an expanded toolset to be productive contributors as soon as they step in the door and advance within your organization.

Successful manufacturers have found ways to increase productivity while proving they are exciting, innovative, and rewarding places to work. Join this webinar for a discussion that will help you future-proof your workforce and:

- Understand the impact that the changing workforce is having on manufacturers today.
- Learn how to maximize productivity amongst your employees and use your existing workforce to its fullest potential.
- Identify how technology can play an integral role in the recruiting, retaining, and effective scheduling of the new generation of workers.

Webinar: Managing Demographic

Change - Risks & Opportunities for Industry

written by Lauri Moon | October 25, 2024

As a generation of workers retire, companies are struggling to capture and transfer their knowledge and experience. Additionally, many have had challenges integrating the new generation of workers, both from a cultural and risk awareness standpoint.

What can companies do to retain critically important institutional knowledge among older workers about to retire and pass it along to current and new employees to reduce the organization's risk exposure and improve performance? What processes and systems need to be modified to capture the attention of this new group of employees?

During this webinar, the speakers will discuss the greatest challenges their clients are faced with and the opportunities related to demographic change and share four critical components to managing this change.
